LETTER FROM THE OWNERS

During the Renaissance, the scientific community, with new advances like the microscope, began to consider that even the smallest of creatures could have something valuable to teach mankind. A Dutch painter, Otto Marseus van Schrieck, was frequently engaged with the scientific community and knew about the latest theories and discoveries. Inspired by these discoveries, van Schrieck began to paint still life paintings with subjects and settings considered peculiar, or even taboo, for art at the time. This sub-genre was called Sottobosco, which translates as undergrowth or the forest floor.

Re-enchanting the World

In 2023, we find ourselves in the midst of a "Wild Renaissance" in which "artists and architects are drawing new perspectives and inventing new possibilities in response to the ecological crisis". We are increasingly aware of the healing properties of nature, and their soothing effect on our frayed nerves. The forest floor, which consists of earthy materials like wood and clay, ground us in the simple pleasures of the natural world, and remind us that it is the rudimental things that sustain us.

This year Renwil takes inspiration from the Renaissance painting practice of Sottobosco, focusing on nature inspired themes and natural materials and celebrating the age-old role of art to re-enchant the world.

MESSAGE DES PROPRIÉTAIRES

À l'époque de la Renaissance, la communauté scientifique, avec de nouvelles avancées comme le microscope, a commencé à considérer que même la plus petite des créatures pouvait avoir quelque chose de précieux à enseigner à l'humanité. Un peintre néerlandais, Otto Marseus van Schrieck, était fortement impliqué auprès de la communauté scientifique et a l'affût des dernières théories et découvertes. Inspiré par ces découvertes, van Schrieck a commencé à peindre des oeuvres sous le theme de la nature morte, avec des sujets et des milieus considérés comme étranges, voire tabous, pour l'art à l'époque. Ce sous-genre s'appelait Sottobosco, qui se traduit par sous-bois ou sol forestier.

Le ré-enchantement du monde

En 2023, nous nous trouvons au cœur d'une "Renaissance Sauvage" dans laquelle "artistes et architectes dessinent de nouvelles perspectives et inventent de nouvelles possibilités en réponse à la crise écologique". Nous sommes de plus en plus conscients des propriétés curatives de la nature et de leur effet apaisant sur nos vies effrénées. Le sol de la forêt, composé de matériaux terreux comme le bois et l'argile, nous ancre dans les plaisirs simples du monde naturel et nous rappelle que ce sont les choses rudimentaires qui nous soutiennent.

Cette année, Renwil s'inspire de la pratique picturale de la Renaissance, Sottobosco, en se concentrant sur des thèmes inspirés de la nature et des matériaux naturels, tout en célébrant le rôle séculaire de l'art de ré-enchanter le monde.

Steven Sabados Studio by Renwil

Steven has enjoyed a long career thanks to his eye for design and his playful, engaged curiosity. Like most artists, when Steven left art school, he left behind the dream of being a painter, but he never stopped being an artist. He always kept a corner in his home, or a space in a loft where he could escape the hustle of the day and retreat into his personal studio. He developed and refined his technique and his vision during the nighttime hours, freely exploring his own imagination.

Renwil is proud to present the Steven Sabados Studio line, inspired by his original artwork. In this collection, Steven marries his years in design with his voice as an artist to create unique home accents. From irreverent to peaceful, from playful to mysterious, each design explores different palettes, different materials, and different aspects of Steven.

Steven Sabados Studio Par Renwil

Steven vaut sa longue carrière à sa sensibilité artistique et à sa curiosité enjouée et engagée. À l'instar de la plupart des artistes, Steven a quitté l'école des beaux-arts et du coup délaissé son rêve de carrière de peintre sans jamais toutefois désavouer sa vocation d'artiste. Il avait toujours dans son espace de vie ou un loft un endroit où il pouvait échapper à la cohue de la journée et se retirer dans son studio personnel. Il développait et affinait sa technique et sa vision jusqu'aux petites heures du matin, donnant libre cours à son imagination.

Renwil est fière de présenter la ligne Steven Sabados Studio, inspirée de ses oeuvres originales. Dans cette collection, Steven combine ses années d'expérience en conceptualisation avec son sens artistique pour créer des accents uniques pour la maison. De l'improvisé jusqu'au serein, du ludique jusqu'au mystérieux, chaque design explore différentes palettes et différents matériaux, mettant à profit les différentes facettes de Steven.

RUG ART

Rug Construction Types

HAND-WOVEN | FLAT-WOVEN

The hand weaving technique is renowned for its lack of pile. Requiring expert knowledge, skilled artisans are necessary for this traditional method of weaving that produces flat rugs with highly detailed patterns.

HAND-TUFTED

First the design is stenciled onto a piece of canvas tightly stretched across a frame. Then using a tufting gun, yarn is passed through the canvas in a 'V' shape. The yarn is then cut and shaved to ensure equal height. This technique allows the skilled artisans to create curved patterns and piles of different heights and densities.

TABLE-TUFTED

Also known as machine tufted, this technique is similar to the hand tufted process, but uses a modified sewing machine to do the tufting. The motorized tufter can regulate speed and number of tufts per inch, allowing for different densities, designs, and faster production times.

POWER-LOOMED

Machine-made rugs are constructed through thousands of reels of thread that are fed into one giant computer-controlled mechanical loom, which quickly weaves the rug in the chosen pattern. These rugs often feature extremely precise designs and generally are the most affordable.

Natural Fibres

COTTON

A natural soft fibre. Sometimes used as a thread for the base of a rug. Easy to clean and maintain.

WOOL

The most commonly used natural fibre in rug production. Fibre diameter is the single most important wool characteristic which helps to determine the overall price and quality of the rug. Wool rugs will shed over time.

JUTE

A strong coarse natural fibre, derived from plants in the Corchorus family, commonly used to make burlap.

LEATHER & HIDES

Real leather and imitation leather (or PU) is used to make rugs. These are usually remnant of full-piece skins sewn together to produce varying qualities of rugs. Cow hides are animal skins which have gone through similar processing and tanning, making them great floor coverings.

Synthetic Fibres

CHINDI

Chindi rugs are handmade in India from recycled jute and cotton. This makes every rug unique with a mix of bright and beautiful colours.

ACRYLIC

This fibre is durable but not as strong as other synthetics. Most commonly blended with other fibres like polyester (this is called a poly-acrylic blend).

POLYPROPYLENE

Easy to maintain, highly durable, and is able to take on bold colouration. Most commonly used in machine-made rugs. A synthetic fibre is used in indoor/outdoor rugs for its UV, mildew, and water-resistant traits.

POLYESTER

Wears well and feels very soft - especially when used for rugs with a thick pile. Moisture, stain, and abrasion-resistant. Retains colour over time and is very easy to clean.
